

TINA BARR

I took up the brush about 7 years ago, not realizing that after one month I would have my work for sale at the Cathedral Art Show in Adelaide.

My enthusiasm for art and the people associated with it have not waned since. I have had two solo and many joint exhibitions in Adelaide and Melbourne.

I would describe my artwork style as contemporary impressionism.

I enjoy the whole process of painting as it is relaxing (once you have set up!) It is something you can enjoy by yourself or with others of like mind, particularly painting outdoors.

In deciding what to paint, I find there is endless inspiration in seascapes and country scenes.

I feel a deep sense of gratitude in reflecting the beauty of the world.

My love of art has opened a whole new world for me. My eyes have been opened to the beauty of the world around us and I have met many artists and general public through my work.
